HIS 522ma - CORE

Wm. Christopher Hoag, DMin

CHURCH HISTORY I

3 credits

Mondays and Wednesdays 6:00 – 8:50 p.m.

May 20 through July 10

This course surveys the Church's growth and development from sub-apostolic times to the year 1000 C.E. The course will examine the Patristic Age through readings from the Apostolic Fathers, the Apologists, and the theologians of the third and fourth centuries. Special focus will be given to the Golden Age of the Church Fathers and to the major councils of the Church in that period. Developments, trends, and events of medieval times will be discussed, including the papacy, monasticism, the formation of Europe, the Dark Ages, relationships between Eastern and Western expressions of Christianity and Islam.

TH 545ma - CORE

Sister Mary McCormick, OSU, PhD

GOD: ONE AND THREE

2 credits

Mondays and Wednesdays 3:00 – 5:30 p.m.

May 20 through June 26

This systematic study of the doctrine of the Trinity will explore the biblical, historical, and magisterial foundations of the nature of God as defined amid the early Christological controversies and councils. Current developments in Trinitarian theology will be handled in light of modern understandings of language, methodology, symbols and faith experience.

TH 585 - ELECTIVE

Dr. Joel Johnson, PhD

ST. THOMAS AQUINAS: HIS WORK AND LEGACY

2 credits

Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6:00 – 8:30 p.m.

May 21 through June 28

Few figures can compare to St. Thomas Aquinas in terms of both the breadth and depth of his thought and his influence on subsequent theology. This seminar covers a few of the key tenets of Aquinas's theology, including his account of the relation between faith and reason, his arguments concerning the existence and nature of God, and his discussion of the final end of human beings. The course also briefly examines Aquinas's influence on later theologians, especially those of the 20th century.

Note: Master of Arts Core Courses are offered in rotation. MA degree students are encouraged to sign up for any MA core course when it is offered, if at all possible, since the course will not be scheduled again for at least two semesters.
